 @innangelo

INNANGELO is a new scarf and luxury accessory label created by the designer Inna Zobova and the filmmaker and artist Bruno Aveillan.

INNANGELO is a fusion of avant-garde design and traditional craftsmanship. A limited edition scarves, designed by Inna Zobova in Paris, then produced and hand-finished in the workshops of the prestigious House of Ratti, on the banks of Lake Como in Italy.

On the edge of fashion and art INNANGELO has a knack for catching the spirit of globe-trotter Women. Be prepared to make a glamorous entry to your favourite Italian hideaway on Lake Como or to Parisian rendez-vous, as our statement Tunics will make some head turn. You will feel the best being dressed in our collection by ... your design.

Customise, multiply the looks, make a Reverso Tunic and yes... Wear it any way - your way! Just choose two different scarves for you tunic et voila! Your own cult Reverso Tunic will be custom made for you in Paris. Isn't this a modern luxury?

INNANGELO defines itself as a «silk gallery», regularly inviting prestigious artists to unleash their creativity on rare materials of the highest quality.

On 18 October, Richard Texier («Pantheo Vortex» and «Angel Bear», one of the few contemporary artists to have an entire issue of the magazine Art Press dedicated to him), has revealed a series of three scarves in a limited edition of 100 pieces, entitled «ECLIPTICA», «UMBRA TERRA» and «THEORIA SACRA».

On 20 October, it was the turn of Mircea Cantor (2011 winner of the Marcel Duchamp Prize, whose work is in the collections of major museums including New York's MoMA, the Walker Art Center in Minneapolis and Centre Beaubourg in Paris) to present an installation illustrating the genesis of his INNANGELO silk design entitled «YOU FIRE ROPE ME».

Led by Heart Fund ambassadors Inna Zobova and Bruno Aveillan, INNANGELO is committed to raising funds for children with heart disease. www.theheartfund.eu
